Integrated Waste Management

The Boston Mountain Solid Waste District uses the Integrated Waste Management (IWM) system for solid waste management. IWM is a system that uses various complimentary management options to safely and efficiently manage solid waste. The IWM system focuses on the following hierarchy:

Education plays a critical role in implementing this solid waste system. The Boston Mountain Solid Waste District provides one-on-one technical assistance and workshops for local governments, businesses, individuals and industries interested in incorporating waste reduction efforts into their operations.

The District has speakers available on several solid waste topics including Integrated Waste Management, recycling, composting, or we can tailor one to your needs. We can even bring along our mascot, Recycle Ben!

Stan the Can Man

Stan the Can Man is a solid waste character! He is a trash can man that only eats trash...not recyclables. The recyclables give him an upset stomach. Stan is a big fan of recycling because it keeps the recyclables out of his trash!!!

Stan assists with classroom presentations on recycling. Call for more information.

Need Exhibitors???

The Boston Mountain Solid Waste District is available to exhibit and provide materials on any of the topics discussed.

Resource Library

The Boston Mountain Solid Waste District has a resource library available to teachers and the public. There are over 100 titles to choose from including curriculum, children's books, videos, and more.

School Grants Available

If you are interested in recycling programs for your local schools, we can help. The District offers small grants up to $500 for school based recycling programs. Just give us a call.!

Teacher Workshops

The Boston Mountain Solid Waste District sponsors workshops and training opportunities for teachers. A teacher's workshop is held annually to focus on environmental education and integrating solid waste activities into the already established lesson plans. The workshop offers hands-on classroom activities in integrated waste management, recycling, source reduction and pollution prevention, as well as offering professional development credits.

Substitute Reimbursement Available

Substitute reimbursement fees will be available for the first 25 teachers that register. Up to $40.00 will be provided to the teachers who attend the workshop.
